Frank Lynam, the television star, talks about what he ate yesterday.

"I have to get up at 4 a.m. because I am on a breakfast television show. Before I left home yesterday, I had a lot of bananas and apples. It's a long time before lunch so I have to eat a lot when I get up. If I don't, I feel very hungry by 9 a.m. I never drink tea or coffee.

Last month, I decided not to eat any more red meat and I never eat sweet food now. When I was younger, I ate a lot of chocolate and cakes. When I first stopped eating sugar, I had headaches. My doctor told me to eat a lot of bread and pasta to make the pain go.

Yesterday, I went home at about 12.30 and had fish for lunch. I eat a lot of fish. I was filming all afternoon so I took some snacks with me.

I had a cheese sandwich and a glass of milk at home before I went out to play tennis. My late supper was more fish with rice and salad. It is important for me to eat well."

Ice Hotel

When I first heard about an 'ice hotel', I thought it was a joke. I know about the igloos that Eskimos live in, of course, but that's not what comes to mind when I think of 'hotel'. The thought that someone could really build an entire hotel out of ice, rent rooms, and then repeat this process each year was really hard to believe. But it does happen! It has now become one of the most popular ways of spending a winter vacation.

The first ice hotel was built in 1989 in a village called Jukkasjärvi in the north of Sweden, where the winter temperature is well below zero. Building begins each year in October, and the hotel is open to guests from December through April. By summer the hotel has melted, but, amazingly, plans have already been made to build a bigger and better ice structure for the following winter.

Ice hotels are built with blocks of ice and hard-packed snow. Guests are given comfortable sleeping bags and sleep on beds made of blocks of ice which are covered with soft tops. Although the air temperature in the room is below freezing, their bodies stay warm.

Personally, I don't know anyone who has stayed at an ice hotel. If I slept there, I'm sure I'd have nothing but aches and pains. But then, such an experience is probably worth having, and it's not every night you can drink out of an ice glass while enjoying a beautiful view.

31. What is the writer trying to do in the text?

- A. give some information about an ice hotel
- B. tell people how to build an ice hotel
- C. describe a personal experience in an ice hotel
- D. compare an ice hotel with an igloo

32. The writer thinks the most surprising thing about the ice hotel is

- A. how comfortable it is.
- B. how huge the building is.
- C. that it is recreated every year.
- D. that people have so much fun there.

33. A guest at the ice hotel spends the night

- A. in their own sleeping bag.
- B. on an unusual kind of bed.
- C. in a heated room.
- D. on top of soft snow.

34. The writer's conclusion about staying at the ice hotel is that it could be

- A. uncomfortable but interesting.
- B. expensive but wonderful.
- C. unfriendly but beautiful.
- D. painful but welcoming.

35. Which advertisement is for the ice hotel in Jukkasjärvi?

A.

Visit our ice hotel and enjoy the warmest vacation in Sweden.
Sit in a bar with amazing views.
Open from October to April.

B.
